

I find it incredulous that Sinclair will be airing program within days of the election that is so obviously biased against candidate John Kerry.

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

But it is also an infringement of the very rules that have guided broadcasting over the airwaves for decades in this country. I find it frightening that media giants such as Clear Channel, Viacom, Fox and now this corporation, Sinclair, have so purposefully sought to fulfil the agenda of the current administration. It is both Orwellian and smacks of totalitarianism. As a publisher, I am truly dismayed by this development and insist that the FCC intervene to prevent Sinclair from airing this program. At the very least, they ought to be required to air the recent release of the movie on John Kerry, to be fair. I will write my Congressmen and advise all of my friends and colleagues of this disastrous decision and malfeasance.
